About us

HedgeMix is a professional equity research firm dedicated to helping growth-stage companies improve their visibility and investor communication. We are a team of university-educated economists with years of experience analyzing companies, including work for the American firm Seeking Alpha.

What we offer

We specialize in issuer-sponsored equity research designed to promote transparency and build long-term credibility in the capital markets. In addition, we offer editorial-style articles featured on the world's leading investment platforms. Our mission is to craft compelling narratives around your company, strengthening investor understanding and engagement.

Thanks to our distribution partners, our reports reach millions of investors, helping to elevate your company's profile within the investment community.

About Issuer Sponsored Equity Research

Issuer sponsored equity research is research funded by the company being analyzed, typically used by micro and small cap companies that receive little or no attention from traditional analysts.

We offer Sponsored Research services because we believe many of these companies are undercovered. Our reports help increase investor awareness and improve liquidity in the company's stock by making the investment story more visible and accessible.

Our research is distributed through all the leading investment platforms reaching both institutional and retail investors. Our strong global distribution network ensures the company's message is heard widely, helping attract interest, drive trading activity, and support a fair market valuation.

Distribution

All reports are distributed via established investment platforms and media partners. This ensures maximum visibility and credibility with relevant investor audiences.
